RAK Ceramics announces its participation in Clerkenwell Design Week 2024, offering a vibrant program from May 21st to 23rd at the RAK Ceramics London Design Hub, located at 100 St John Street. The event promises a blend of inspiration, networking, and fun across three dynamic days.

A cocktail hour on the first day will set the stage for a series of interactive experiences, including clay sculpture and dried flower arranging workshops for invited guests. These hands-on activities provide visitors with a chance to unleash their creativity and connect with fellow design enthusiasts.

The Design Hub will also host live cooking demonstrations, where visitors can witness the versatility of CookingRAK, recently awarded with the RedDot Award in the Best of the Best and in the Product innovation categories. Guests will have the opportunity to sample delicious dishes while learning about RAK Ceramics' innovative kitchen solutions.

Throughout the event, RAK Ceramics will showcase a range of products, including its renowned Designer Collections for the bathroom and an extensive selection of surfaces for interiors and outdoor spaces. Product debuts at CDW will include new stainless steel RAK-Ingot washbasins, available in four shapes and three finishes, designed for seamless integration with RAK Ceramics accessories, mirrors, and taps.

RAK Ceramics' involvement with Clerkenwell Design Week will culminate with an Arabian-themed party on the last evening, featuring cocktails, an indoor barbecue, and live music. This closing celebration will offer guests a chance to relax, network, and reflect on the week.

Visit them at 100 St John Street, London.
