

Learn the truth about five advantages of vitrified tiles for your homes

Trends and time, these two matching forces move just about everything in design. When they work in harmony, everything flows exquisitely. After all, fashion changes with time. With an assortment of progressive & stylish products and designs to choose from, RAK Ceramics, shares a quick run-through with you on vitrified tiles.

Florida

What are vitrified tiles?

Vitrified tiles are made by blending fine minerals like clay and silica. A remarkable substitute to natural stone floorings, vitrified tiles are stain resistant and strong.

Why opt for vitrified tiles?

- Vitrified tiles hold a smooth finishing, are fade and scrape resistant
- Highly resistant to water, dirt and stain, vitrified tiles are super easy to maintain. Thereby making them easy to be cherry-picked for interior & exterior purposes
- A brilliant alternative to natural stone floorings such as marble and granite, vitrified tiles are low on absorptivity
- Vitrified tiles are popular for residential purposes as they defy high traffic & possess a long life

What are the different types of vitrified tiles available?

The following types of vitrified tiles will help you decide a suitable option across a host of interior/exterior ideas:

- Full body: tiles are pigmented across the entire tile thereby making them tough, performing well against scratches etc.
- Digital tiles: are designed by treating an extraordinary resolution digital printing over the regular vitrified tiles
- Glazed vitrified: are given an added varnish of glass and thus look really glossy
- Double charge: vitrified tiles are produced by a press that prints contours on the tiles. These are made with double layer of pigments, around 3-4mm denser than other tiles
- Polished vitrified: are vitrified tiles that are polished to obtain an even smoother surface

Portico Oak

Take a look at RAK Ceramics' Portico Oak for example. These full body porcelain tiles are created to deliver a perfect matt finish, natural in appearance and is completely apt for your homes. Keeping in mind your vision for a perfect home, RAK Ceramics produces bespoke styles for both light and heavy duty areas. RAK Ceramics have created winsome tiles, with their Serra White collection too. These full body porcelain tiles are smooth, well-polished & are glossy in nature.

Serra White

Taking imagination to a whole new altar altogether, RAK Ceramics thoughtfully curated veins on Serra white tiles that don't just imitate the look of marble, but creates floors that are elegant and exquisite. After all, your floor is what people observe first.